UM STUDENTS WIN NATIONAL WELDING AWARDS

MISSOULA, Mont.--

Three welding students at The University of Montana-Missoula's College of Technology received national awards during the 1998 School Shop Arc Welding Awards Program, which has distributed $25,150 in awards this year.

Jason Walrath of Homer, Alaska, received the $1,000 Best of Program award for his entry describing the "Gooseneck Trailer" he fabricated. Miles T. McCarvel of Missoula received a $250 Silver Award for his "Welding Table With Toolbox." Tony Auban of Missoula received the $125 Bronze Award for his "Flat Bed Trailer."

The UM students submitted entries in the Division II-A portion of the awards program for entrants 18 years or older who also are career students.

The awards program is sponsored by the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation, which was established in 1936 by Lincoln Electric Co. to advance the science and application of arc welding.
